

SHAKESPEARE: SHAKESPEAREAN INSULTS

Another thing Shakespeare was great at was writing some of the best one-liner insults. While many of these aren't used in our everyday language, they are still clever, and oftentimes hilarious! Here are a few:

- “A pox o’ your throat you bawling, blasphemous, incharitable dog”
- The Tempest
- “I do desire we may be better strangers”
- As You Like It
- “You have such a February face, so full of frost, of storm and cloudiness”
- Much Ado About Nothing
- “Thou paper-fac’d villain”
- Henry IV, Part 2
- “Thou Lily-liver’d boy”
- Macbeth
- “Thou art a boil, a plague sore”
- King Lear
- “She is spherical, like a globe, I could find out countries in her”
- The Comedy of Errors
- “You, minion, are too saucy”
- Two Gentlemen of Verona
- “Out of my sight! Thou dost infect my eyes!”
- Richard III
- “Thou cream-faced loon! Where gots’t thou that goose look?”
- Macbeth
